

New Assignment 9/8/24

For the assignment this week, you will only need to answer one of the questions under the learning objectives. It is your choice which. These assignments are part of the discussion prep assignments from the evaluation / grading section (<https://lccc-phi-240-course-website.netlify.app/syllabus/05-evaluation-grading>) of the syllabus. As stated in the syllabus, there will be 15 of these and each will be worth 6 points. The first one was the introduction in the discord channel. However, the rest I will provide a module for and you will submit your assignment there.

Edit: As I mentioned in class, you need to do four things here. Pick Only one of the LOs. Write it as a question. Use proper grammar, syntax etc., (I have already done this for you below). Give a one sentence answer from the book. You can write it in your own words. Respond to this with one problem, concern, etc.

For instance,

Q: "What is the Divine Command Theory theory of Ethics?"

A: The divine command theory of ethics is the view that something is right because a divine being, Al, God, medical researcher etc., says it is right.

Response: Does the divine being make it right, or does the divine being only recognize that it is right?

Choose One:

- What are some of the challenges in developing a global ethical perspective in a world that is religiously diverse?
- How is the idea of universal human rights linked to secularism, cosmopolitanism, and the European Enlightenment?
- What is the divine command theory of ethics?
- What is the Golden Rule? E.g., do unto others as they would do unto you.
- How does the problem of evil and free will create challenges for religious ethics?
- What are some of the differences between secular/humanistic and religious approaches to ethics? What are some of the similarities?
- How might one critique modern secular values using the concept of Eurocentrism?
